BOARD OF TRADE

Old Bedford's Business Men Wake Up and

EFFECT ORGANIZATION

To "Provide for the Common Defence and Promote the General Welfare" of Historic Old Town.

If the future work of the Board of Trade organized in the Court House Tuesday evening may be judged by the attendance and interest manifested on the part of Bedford's business and professional men at that meeting, Bedford has something to hope for.

To a group of business men, in numbers surpassing expectations, D. C. Reiley, Esq., read the agreement entered into by the business and professional men of the town, after which a temporary organization was formed by the election of Humphrey D. Tate, Esq., President and S. A. Van Ormer Secretary.

Mr. Tate on taking the chair made a characteristically appropriate address, in which, after thanking those present for the honor conferred, pointed out that business affairs are coming into the hands of a younger generation. That we live in a commercial age is evident on every hand. Capital is abundant but it must be courted and handled with care. The prosperity of the town is affected by the bringing in of one industry.

On motion, duly carried, the Chair appointed a committee of five to nominate officers for a permanent organization, as follows: L. D. Blackwelder, John Line, O. W. Smith, W. B. Mock and E. F. England.

The committee having retired to the grand jury room, A. C. Blackburn was called upon, and pledged his support, as did also George J. Jacobs, E. H. Blackburn, D. C. Reiley, Simon H. Sell, Patrick Hughes and others.

The nomination committee returned and reported the following: President, J. Frank Russell; Secretaries, D. C. Reiley and William Brice, Jr.; Treasurer, Jo. W. Tate; Vice Presidents, Hon. J. H. Longenecker, A. B. Egolf, J. Anson Wright, Patrick Hughes, W. S. Reed and S. H. Sell; Executive Committee, Hon. E. S. Doty, E. A. Barnett, S. A. Van Ormer, O. W. Smith, Simon Oppenheimer, H. E. Miller, Abe Hoffman, John Line, L. D. Blackwelder, F. H. Brightbill, R. A. Stiver, J. L. McLaughlin, H. C. Heckerman, A. C. Blackburn, W. B. Mock and P. N. Risser.

President Russell took the chair and in a few well-chosen words pledged his efforts for the welfare of the organization.

The Executive Committee was authorized to prepare by-laws and report at the next meeting, after which the Board adjourned to meet Tuesday evening, July 6.

Druggists at Springs

The members of the Pennsylvania Pharmaceutical Association closed a most pleasant and profitable convention at Bedford Springs last evening. There were more than 150 members present, many of whom were accompanied by their families.

The social features of the convention were a banquet Tuesday night and a masquerade promenade and dance Wednesday night. Moving pictures were also a source of attraction Wednesday evening. The visitors speak in most complimentary terms of the Management and of the entertainment in general at the Springs.

TWO ORDINANCES

Burgess Corle Asks Assistance in Enforcing Local Laws.

To the citizens of Bedford:

In view of the fact that a dastardly crime was committed by a tramp in Napier Township last Saturday, and that there is an ordinance prohibiting vagrancy in the borough, I respectfully call upon all citizens to co-operate with me in enforcing the ordinance.

If at any time you should happen to notice a tramp in your locality kindly notify me, or Mr. John Line, president of Council, or any other member of the Council by telephone, and we will immediately send one of our policemen and have the tramp locked up or compel him to leave the town at once.

It is my opinion, along with the opinion of many other citizens of the town, that each and every tramp that comes to Bedford should be locked up for several days in the borough lockup and fed on a very light diet, and then it would be but a very short time until the "Knights of the Road" would learn that we have no use for them here, and they would give Bedford a wide berth.

Respectfully,
M. W. Corle,
Chief Burgess.

Fourth of July Order

Notice is hereby given that any person or persons who fire a squib, revolver, torpedo or explosive of any kind within the borough limits before midnight of July 4, or after midnight of July 5, will be arrested and fined or imprisoned in the borough lockup, as the case may be.

The use of revolvers, explosive torpedoes, dynamite canes and crackers, are positively prohibited on the day we celebrate as the 4th of July.

By order of
M. W. CORLE,
Chief Burgess.

Rhodes Gives Bail

John H. Rhodes, who was recently arrested at Rainsburg on charge of wife desertion and non-support, has given bail for his appearance at court. Rhodes, who had not been living with his wife in Johnstown, brought his child, which was being cared for by the mother, to Rainsburg. The child is again in the custody of the mother, and it is thought since she has the child, she will not push the suit against Rhodes.

Marriage Licenses

Frank A. Grubb and Jessie P. Perrin, of Chaneysville.

James G. Myers of Dobbin, W. Va., and Nellie T. Stoler of Saxton, Edward H. Fair and Sarah E. Mowry, of New Buena Vista.

ANNUAL CONVENTION

Sunday School Workers of All Districts of County Meet in

ST. JOHN'S REF. CHURCH

In Sixteenth Session—Interesting and Instructive Addresses Delivered—Committee Reports.

The Sixteenth Annual Convention of the Bedford County Sabbath School Association met in St. John's Reformed Church, Bedford, Thursday, June 17, at 10:30 a. m. The convention was opened with singing the hymn "Onward Christian Soldiers," after which the Rev. J. Albert Eyer, pastor of the church, conducted the devotional services, taking for his scripture lesson the first 11 verses of the 40th Psalm. President William S. Lysinger gave greetings to those assembled. E. M. Pennell, Esq., in his Address of Welcome, spoke of the growth in the Sunday School work and enlarged upon the value of systematized organization. E. Howard Blackburn, Vice President, responded to the welcome in a pleasing and forcible manner. The delegates were assigned to their homes by the Entertainment Committee and the first session was closed with the benediction by Rev. Guldin.

Thursday Afternoon

The afternoon session was opened with a song service, and in the absence of Rev. M. L. Culler, Rev. Chambers of Pleasantville conducted the devotional services. The minutes of the convention of 1908 were then read. The President read his report which showed that the organization of the fourteen districts has enabled the work to be carried on with greater zeal and larger results have been made possible to the individual schools. Among the recommendations was that of the establishment of the Temperance Department.

Rev. J. C. Stayer, superintendent of the Teachers' Training Department, reported forty classes, with a membership of 250, which shows a remarkable growth in this department.

Miss Elizabeth Longenecker, superintendent of the Primary and Cradle Roll Department, and Rev. O. B. Poulson of the Home Department, made reports showing progress in these lines.

Capt. I. K. Little, superintendent of the adult class organization, was not able to make a complete report at the time but he referred to the department as having made strong gains, showing the very great possibilities of this branch of the work.

M. H. Kramer, Esq., of Hyndman spoke of the great mission of the Sunday School and told how it can be made a greater factor for good in the community. "The Equipped Teacher" was discussed in a scholarly and forcible manner by J. Anson Wright, who said, among other strong points, that a teacher to be successful must be morally clean, and spiritually alive, patterning after some high ideal; that ideal being the greatest of all teachers, Christ Jesus. This subject was further discussed by Rev. Dr. Van Pelt of Everett and Hon. S. P. Wishart of Wells Valley, Pa. The President appointed John A. Cuppett and D. N. Byers committee on enrollment.

W. G. Landis, general secretary, of Philadelphia gave a talk on "The Ideal and Practical School," in his usual and convincing manner, his main point being for a school which produces results. Mrs. J. A. Crawford of Pittsburg, having just arrived.

Tramp Attacks Woman

Last Saturday forenoon while Mrs. Jacob Gump was alone at their home at Napier a tramp entered the house and asked for something to eat. Mrs. Gump brought him some food when he said he didn't want anything to eat; he wanted money. When told she had no money for him he grabbed her and shook her, and in the scuffle that ensued he struck her and cut her several places with a knife. Her screams and the slamming of a door frightened him away.

Mrs. Gump, though severely shocked, bruised and cut, was not seriously injured.

Sheriff Dodson and Constable Harry Fetter, together with others, searched for the offender but without success; he is still at large.

OUTBREAK OF PLANT LICE

Head of State Department of Zoology Recommends

WHALE OIL SOAP

To Exterminate Aphids—Other Solutions May Be Used—Pests Appear Throughout State.

State Zoologist Surface reports that he is receiving communications from all parts of the State of Pennsylvania of the unusual outbreak of Aphids, or Plant lice, this year. Many persons ask what to do for them, while others state that they have sprayed with various preparations without success, some stating they have used Paris green; others arsenate of lead; others Bordeaux mixture, lime-sulfur wash, etc. Some sprayed last winter, and some sprayed last week, likewise without results that were good. In reply to these communications explanation has been made that the Plant Lice are sucking insects which damage trees and other plants by injecting a poisonous saliva, and then sucking out the modified sap. The leaves upon which they live curl until they form projecting homes within which the pests are then safe, and cannot be reached by any spray liquids. Bordeaux mixture does not affect them because it is a fungicide. The arsenical poisons do not kill them because they are for the chewing insects only.

The Plant Lice are to be killed by spraying at the right time, which means shortly after the buds burst or before the leaves have curled, with the right material, strong enough to kill the pests but not strong enough to injure the leaves. For this (1) one pound of whale oil soap in six gallons of water should be used, or (2) about eight per cent. kerosene emulsion, or (3) a stronger soap solution of some other kind of soap, or (4) a very strong tobacco decoction. It must be so applied as to come into contact with the bodies of the pests, or they will not be injured. Therefore, those within the curled leaves are safe as far as spraying is concerned, and the leaves containing them should be picked off and destroyed by burning or dropping into oil.

The Apple Aphid is by far the most commonly reported pest at this time of year. However, it has reached its worst and will soon be leaving the apple leaves to migrate to the roots of grasses and grains, where it spends the summer. In fact, many leaves now show only its cast skins. The appearance is worse than the result, as the leaves are deformed but not entirely destroyed, and as treatment at this time of year for the badly curled leaves is out of the question, it is not necessary to attempt to give it. Where, however, aphids, jumping plant lice, leaf hoppers, and other sucking insects are present, the remedy consists in getting one of the contact insecticides named above to come in touch with the body of the pest. This can be done by spraying or by bending the twigs containing the pests so that they can be dipped into pans holding the liquid, or by dipping bunches of twigs or whisk brooms into the liquid and flipping it against the pests in a fine spray. This communication is intended to be an answer to hundreds of inquiries on this topic now being received by the Division of Zoology of the Department of Agriculture.

The first application of Manzan, the great Pile remedy, will almost instantly give relief. Continued use of Manzan for a few days will effect a cure. The tube in which it is put up has a small nozzle attached, so that there is no inconvenience whatever. Manzan is for the cure of any kind of Piles. It is sold here by Ed. D. Heckerman.

The Merchant Prince had sent for the Faithful Clerk, who confronted his master tremblingly.
"Jenkins," said the Merchant Prince, "You have been in my employ for twenty-five years."

"Yes, sir," faltered the Faithful Clerk.
"Twenty-five years today, is it not?"
"Yes, sir. Thank you, sir, for remembering it."
"That! That! You have been an honor to the House."
"Thank you again, sir."
"You have proved yourself worthy of my confidence."
"Oh, sir!"
"You have grown gray in my service."

"Yes, sir."

GOING AFTER IT RIGHT

Punxsutawneyites are Making Preparations for Monster Old Home Week Celebration.

Punxsutawney, Pa., June 16.—Never in the history of this city has as much energy been put into a project as is being devoted to making "Old Home Week," August 22-28, inclusive, a big success. Every man in the town is bending his energies toward the prospective celebration, and the slogan is the "Bibbist Time in Western Pennsylvania." If money, time and brains can do it, then the success of the celebration is assured, for 400 men, who are serving on the various committees are devoting every minute of their spare time to accomplish this end.

Those who at any time lived in Punxsutawney, and would wish to see what wonderful progress has been made in recent years, could hardly select a better time than Old Home Week for doing so. There will be something doing every day in the week, and every minute of the day.

GOOD CHEER FOR INVALIDS

This is the time of year when all who are gifted with health and strength turn to the outdoors to revel through the coming months in summer sunshine, in balmy air, in the colors and odors of flowers and in the blessed green of field and woodland. Yet while spring brings joy and pleasure to the world at large, it forecasts only added discomfort to the invalids who are shut in their rooms. To thousands who are permanently confined, perhaps to some in this very neighborhood, summer does not mean sweeping views of hillside and valley, delightful scented breezes or rambles through shady lanes. It means only comfortless nights and days in bed or wheel chair, cooped up in a narrow room where the air is hot and stifling, without hope of relief.

The report of The Pennsylvania Branch of The Shut-In Society, just received, states that this branch alone numbers 654 Shut-Ins in Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia and Kentucky.

The Shut-In Society was organized in New York City in 1877 for the purpose of bringing cheer and comfort into the lives of the sick and lonely. It provides the invalids with reading matter, cheerful correspondents, birthday and Christmas cards, air cushions, hot water bags, etc. Sick room appliances, such as wheel chairs, bed rests, bed tables, rocking chairs, are loaned to those who need them. Exchanges for the sale of the work of the invalids are maintained by the Branch and by this means many are enabled to obtain the necessities of life.

This Society presents an opportunity for anyone who wishes to take part in this work of making afflicted lives more endurable. New associate or active members are desired who will correspond with the invalids and visit those in their neighborhood. Dues are $1.00 a year.

The Pennsylvania Branch also wishes to know of any invalids in these four states to whom the society could bring good cheer. The dues of Shut-Ins are twenty-five cents a year, which sum covers the subscription to the Open Window, the magazine of the society.

All inquiries in reference to the work of the Branch and contributions toward its support will be gladly received and promptly acknowledged if sent to its office, 1710 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, addressed to the President, Miss Mary Parker Nicholson. Sample copies of the Open Window and the Quarterly, published by the Branch, will also be mailed on request.

Mother's Hairpin

The doorbell broke the other day. Pop couldn't make it ring. Said he: "I'll have to get a man To fix the blamed old thing." My mother said: "Oh, don't do that. Think what you'd have to pay." And then she took a hairpin out And fixed it right away.

We lost the back door key last week. 'Twas when the door was locked; Pop fumed around and said things till The neighbors were all shocked; Then Mom she got a hairpin out An' poked, an' pretty quick She had the bolt turned in the lock. The hairpin did the trick.

There's nothin' much that Mom can't do With hairpins, seems as like, One day she'll fix Pop's busted watch. An' next 'twill be my bike; If we was poor I'd bet that she Could make hard luck take wings By goin' 'round the city with A hairpin, fixin' things. Denver Post.

Colds that hang on weaken the constitution and develop into consumption. Foley's Honey and Tar cures persistent coughs that refuse to yield to other treatment. Do not experiment with untried remedies as delay may result in your cold settling on your lungs. Ed. D. Heckerman.

DOING THEIR DUTY

Scores of Bedford Readers Are Learning the Duty of the Kidneys.

To filter the blood is the kidneys' duty. When they fail to do this the kidneys are sick. Backache and many kidney ills follow. Urinary trouble, diabetes. Doan's Kidney Pills cure them all. Bedford people endorse our claim. Jacob Chamberlain, retired, W. Pitt St., Bedford, Pa., says: "I suffered from rheumatism and kidney disease for years and nothing I took helped me in the least. There was a constant, dragging down pain through my back and a soreness across my kidneys. I was also lame and stiff in the morning and the kidney secretions were irregular in passage, causing me great annoyance. I had heard a great deal about Doan's Kidney Pills and deciding to try them, I procured a box at Dull's Drug Store. I received such great relief from the use of this box that I continued, until I was entirely cured. I am glad to acknowledge the benefits I derived from this sterling remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. June 18-21.

REMAINS OF SOLDIER FOUND

The Plow Share Turned the Bones Up From Earth.

Charles L. Smith, who resides near the Mansfield Monument, on the Antietam battlefield, while plowing one day last week unearthed the remains of a soldier. Mr. Smith at first plowed up the leg bones of a human being. Messrs. S. H. Delaney and O. T. Reilly, of Sharpsburg, happened to be driving by about the time of the discovery and Mr. Smith called them.

The three then dug up the entire skeleton of a man and near where the heart should be was found a bullet, leading those making the discovery to believe that this was the bullet that caused the man's death. A number of articles of a Federal soldier's equipment were found and one button bearing the coat-of-arms of Massachusetts. This would seem to indicate that the man belonged to a Massachusetts regiment. The bones were in a good state of preservation, notwithstanding they had lain in the ground for 47 years. They will be interred in Antietam National Cemetery.

Sometimes you may be told that there are other things just as good as DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills. That isn't so. Nothing made is as good as DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills for any ailments of the kidney or bladder, which always result in weak back, backache, rheumatic pains, rheumatism and urinary disorders. A trial of DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills is sufficient to convince you how good they are. Send your name to E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, for a free trial box. They are sold here by all druggists.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Girl Killed While Baking Bread for Soldiers.

In his reminiscences of the battle of Gettysburg in the July McClure's Albertus McCrery says:

"Notwithstanding all this flying of shot and shell, there were only three accidents to citizens, and only one of these was fatal. Miss Jennie Wade was killed as she was baking bread for the soldiers. She was shot by a stray bullet that came through an open window and struck her in the breast. In recent years a separate monument has been erected to her honor."

LEFT ALONE

It's the loneliest house you ever saw. This big gray house where I stay; I don't call it livin' at all, at all, Since my mother went away.

Four long weeks ago, an' it seems a year,

"Gone home," so the preacher said, An' I ache in my breast with wantin' her.

And my eyes are always red.

I stay out of doors till I'm almost froze,

'Cause every corner and room Seems empty enough to frighten a boy

And filled to the doors with gloom.

I hate them to call me in to my meals,

Sometimes I think I can't bear To swallow a mouthful of anything

And see her not sitting up there,

A-pourin' the tea an' passin' the things,

An' laughin' to see me take Two big lumps of sugar instead of one,

An' more than my share of cake.

"I'm too big to be kissed," I used to say,

But somehow I don't feel right Crawlin' into bed as still as a mouse,

Nobody saying "good-night."

An' tuckin' the clothes up under my chin,

An' pushin' my hair back so— Things a boy makes fun of before his chums,

But things that he likes, you know.

There's no one to go to when things go wrong,

She was always so safe and sure. Why, not a trouble could tackle a boy That she couldn't up and cure!

There are lots of women, it seems to me,

That wouldn't be missed so much— Women whose boys are about all grown up,

An' old maid aunts, and such.

I can't make out for the life of me Why she should have to go,

An' her boy left here in this old gray house,

A-needin' and wantin' her so.

I tell you, the very loneliest thing In this great big world today Is a boy of ten whose heart is broke 'Cause his mother is gone away.

HEART'S DESIRE

"God give you your heart's desire, Whatever it be," she said; Then down the gallery's shining length Like a thing of light she sped.

Her face was a stranger's face; Her name I shall never know; But softly her benediction fell As the night-winds breathing low.

Who knoweth the heart's desire? Its innermost secret dream? Its holiest shrine where the altar lights

Forever and ever gleam?

Who guesseth the heart's desire? Ah, neither you nor I! It hideth away in darkling space From the gaze of the passer-by.

Who giveth the heart's desire To the child that cries for the moon?

Or the samite robe and the Holy Grail To the soul that was born too soon?

Who giveth the heart's desire To the lover whose love lies dead? Or the priest who faces the silence With the living word unsaid?

Who giveth the heart's desire To the poet with harp unstrung, When he droppeth the trembling lyre With his noblest song unsung?

Making Money On the Farm

I.—Drainage

By C. V. GREGORY,

Agricultural Division, Iowa State College

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

C. V. GREGORY,

Author of "Home Course in Modern Agriculture"

IN order to make money on the farm it is first necessary to get the land in shape to respond liberally to the work put upon it. One of the first and most important steps in getting it in such condition is to drain it thoroughly. There are two general types of drains—the drains and open ditches.

About the only place where an open ditch can be used to advantage is in draining large sections of the country where natural drainage is insufficient to carry off the surface water or to provide an outlet for tile. Such a ditch is really an artificial river. Its large size prevents it from becoming easily clogged. It should be made deep enough to provide a good outlet for the systems from the farms tributary to it. The sides should have a slope of at least one to one—run back one foot for every foot of rise.

The Use of Tile.

The major portion of the drainage, however, must be done with tile. In starting out to tile a farm it pays to go at it systematically. Few farmers are able to tile their whole farms at once, but by planning the whole system before any work is done and then putting in as many rods as possible each year the farm will in the end be thoroughly drained at much less expense than if the work was gone at in a hit or miss fashion.

The proposed lines of tile should be laid off by a good engineer. He has the tools and ability to do it properly, and a little money spent in this way will be made up many times over in the added efficiency of the system.

The first money that is spent for tile should be put where it will yield the quickest returns. On almost every farm there are sloughs and draws that are too wet to work long after the rest of the field is dry. The loss is not so much from the land that is taken up by these sloughs, though that often amounts to considerable, as to the trouble and loss of time in working around them. A line of tile can be run up to such a place to take out the water and laterals put in later to drain the surrounding ground more thoroughly.

Often after the slough is drained there will be a strip of corn over the tile that will be the best in the field, while out a little farther the corn will be small and yellow. The width of this strip of corn is a very good indication of the distance apart that the drains should be placed. The ground over the tile is warmer and drier in the spring than the other, and consequently the corn gets a better start. Through the summer, when there is no water in the tile, air is flowing down through them. This pulls air down through the soil, making root growth more rapid and the plants more vigorous. A deep root system means a large feeding ground and consequently a larger yield. For these reasons all low, flat lands should be thoroughly underlaid with rows of tile, even though the surface water never stands on them. A map showing the exact location of the drains should be kept so that they can be readily found when it is desired to add laterals to the system.

Planning the Drainage System.

In planning a drainage system there are three especially important considerations—the depth and size of the tile and the distance apart of the drains. More tile drains are put in too shallow than too deep. In most soils four feet is about the right depth. In hardpan the tile may have to be laid shallower or the water will never get to them. Deep tile means a deep layer of mellow soil, which acts as a sponge to hold capillary water for the crops. The deeper the tile the farther their effect will be felt on either side.

The size of the tile depends upon the fall and the amount of land to be drained. The engineer who lays out the drain will usually be able to compute the size required.

In estimating the number of acres to be drained by a given line of tile all the land from which surface water flows, toward it should be included, as well as all land drained by laterals which empty into it.

The depth of the drains and the character of the soil are the chief factors that determine the distance apart to place the drains. Tile four feet deep on a sandy soil will draw seventy-five feet on either side, while in clay soil their effect will not be felt a third as far. As already stated, the width of the strip of good corn or other grain over a drain is a good indication of the "pulling power" of the drain. Where a drainage system is being put in a little at a time the laterals can be put in from 75 to 200 feet apart at first, depending on the soil, and others put in between later if experience shows them to be necessary.

The Outlet.

One of the most important parts of the drainage system is the outlet. If the drain empties into a ditch or stream a stone bulwark should be built up to keep the end tile from being washed away. The drain should enter the stream above the level of the water if possible. When it enters below the force of the current is checked, and if the water is carrying much silt some of it will be deposited in the

FIG. 2.—POOR WAY TO LAY TILE. It is a good plan to use sewer pipe for a few feet back from the outlet, as it is not so easily displaced by freezing.

Many drains are built with an outlet in a box at the side of the road or next to a neighbor's fence. Such an outlet is not very satisfactory, but sometimes it is the best that can be provided. The box should be well built to keep out rubbish. The mouth of the tile in this as well as in other forms of outlets should be covered to keep out small animals during dry weather. The bottom of the box should be at least a foot below the tile. The silt that settles here should be cleaned out occasionally. A much better plan than the use of a tile box is to cooperate with the road authorities or with the neighbors and extend the line of tile to some permanent outlet.

Laying the Tile.

It rarely pays a farmer to lay his own tile, but he should keep close watch of the men whom he hires to do the work. A little carelessness in laying the tile may make the drainage system practically worthless. If at any place the tile dips an inch below the grade line, that inch will fill up with silt, and the capacity of the whole system will be reduced that much. The old saying that a chain is no stronger than its weakest link applies with especial force to a tile drain. No man can lay tile to grade accurately by eye, even if there is water running in the ditch at the time. Remember that it is your money that is paying for the drain and that it is your privilege to have it put in as you want it.

The only way to get the tile laid exactly to grade is to use targets. When an engineer lays out a line of the tile he sets a row of grade stakes, each one marked with the depth the ditch is to be at that point. When the ditch is down nearly to the required point targets are set up at these grade stakes. A target consists of an upright stick on each side of the ditch with a crossbar clamped to it. These crossbars should be adjusted so that they are level and just seven feet above the grade line. For instance, if the cut marked on the grade stake is four feet the crossbar should be three feet above the stake. After a number of these targets have been set a string is stretched across the tops of them. Then a measuring stick seven feet long will just reach from the string to the correct grade line. With one man to hold the measuring stick and another to scrape out the bottom of the ditch, it can be dug to grade very accurately.

Of course both digging the ditch and laying the tile should begin at the outlet. Don't let the men stand on the bank and lay the tile with a book. Make them get down into the ditch and put them in by hand, standing on those already laid to hold them in place. By handling each tile any cracked or imperfect ones can be discovered and thrown out. After the tile are laid a little dirt should be scraped from the side of the ditch to hold them in place. As soon as the whole line is in no time should be lost in covering the ditch.

Pennsylvania's History

THE great commonwealth of Pennsylvania is well named the Keystone State. No other state in the Union holds so important a place in the history of this country. No state has done more to uphold and perpetuate the Union. Pennsylvania was one of the original thirteen states. It was named after its founder, William Penn, whose experiences, both political and religious, in England and America read like a most interesting romance.

With the exception of a few trading posts established about 1626 there were no settlements made in Pennsylvania until 1643. In that year a Swedish colony settled at Tinicum Island. These settlers built a mill on Cobb's creek and a church at Tinicum. In 1655 the Swedish settlements were captured by Stuyvesant, and five years later a Dutch settlement was made at Minnesinks. After the capture of New Amsterdam by the English in 1664 the colony on the Delaware continued under the government of New York until the whole territory was ceded to William Penn by Charles II. upon payment of two beaver skins annually. This tribute was paid regularly for a period of ninety-nine years.

It was on March 4, 1681, that William Penn was made, by charter, governor of the province of Pennsylvania. He desired to call the territory "New Wales," but the king insisted upon "Pennsylvania." Penn wanted to compromise by calling it "Sylvania," but the king was determined to have his way about it, much to the discomfort of Penn, who thought it looked like vanity on his part to have the new territory named for him. Penn landed at Newcastle Oct. 27, 1682. Two days later he went to Upland, now called Chester, to call the first general assembly. From Chester he went up the Delaware by boat to Shackamaxon, where he made his famous treaty with the Indians. Penn and the Indians exchanged some presents, and the Indians pledged themselves to live in love with him and his children as long as the sun and the moon should endure. "This," says Voltaire, "was the only treaty between these people and the Christians that was made without an oath and that was never broken." So well was this treaty kept that not a drop of Quaker blood was shed by the Indians while he lived. Penn was deprived of authority from 1692 to 1694, when his rights were restored and William Markham, his cousin, was appointed lieutenant governor.

For a quarter of a century following immigration had been constantly increasing. Friends, Huguenots and north of Ireland Protestants came to this country in large numbers during this period. In 1726 an attempt was made to limit immigration by imposing a fine of 40 shillings per head on immigrants. This was defeated, however, by a union of Friends and Germans.

Important events took place during the rest of this century. Independence hall was built in 1729-34. The northwestern section of Pennsylvania suffered much during the French and Indian war of 1744 to 1756. The boundary between Pennsylvania and Maryland was run by Mason and Dixon in 1767 and 1768. The First Continental congress was held in Pennsylvania in 1774. The Declaration of Independence was promulgated from Independence hall July 4, 1776, and readers of history well know the leading part Pennsylvania took in the war of the Revolution which followed. It was in this state that many of the most exciting scenes of that memorable war were enacted. Pennsylvania contributed more than her share of soldiers and supplies. The sufferings of the patriots who went through that war will never be known. Another memorable event, the Wyoming massacre, occurred in this state in 1778. Other massacres and temporary insurrections took place from time to time. Slavery had long been abhorrent to the people of this state. The question came up for final settlement in 1780, and the Friends played a conspicuous part toward securing the abolishment of the slave traffic. They had repeatedly advised against the importing and purchasing of negroes and created much sentiment in favor of the enactment of a law doing away with the traffic. Finally a bill was presented in the assembly for the gradual abolition of slavery in Pennsylvania, and the bill passed by a vote of 34 to 21.

The whisky insurrection was waged on Pennsylvania soil. Congress passed a law in 1791 placing a tax of 25 cents a gallon on whisky. The farmers about Pittsburgh had no market for their grain, as the Mississippi was not then open to American navigation, so they were obliged to turn their grain into whisky. They could not understand why they should be obliged to pay an excise tax of any kind, and they rebelled in a most vigorous manner. Finally President Washington issued an order for an army of 12,000 men to suppress the uprising and also sent a commission to make peace if possible. After a month's hard work the rebellion was subdued without further bloodshed.

Pennsylvania played a most conspicuous and important part in the war of the rebellion. She furnished many men and supplies, and some of the greatest battles the world had ever known were fought on her soil. The state furnished in all 270 regiments and several unattached companies, numbering 387,284 men. The citizens of the commonwealth also were most liberal in their treatment of soldiers passing through the state. At the close of the war Colonel Thomas A. Scott, on behalf of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, donated $50,000 for bounties for volunteers, but it was decided to use this money to establish schools for soldiers' orphans. Instead, two years later, in 1865, schools in various parts of the state had 266 soldiers' orphans enrolled in them.

The capital was established permanently at Harrisburg by act of the legislature, approved by Governor Snyder, in February, 1810. The cornerstone of the first new capitol building was laid May 31, 1819. The building was completed in 1821 and was first occupied by the assembly Jan. 3, 1822. It was destroyed by fire Feb. 2, 1897. The present new capitol building, concerning which there has been so much talk, was completed at a cost of $13,000,000. It was dedicated Oct. 4, 1906.

The following governors presided at various times over the destinies of Pennsylvania from the time the territory was granted to William Penn by King Charles II. of England until statehood was established in 1790: William Penn, Thomas Lloyd, drew Hamilton, Ed Evans, Charles Goo Keith, Patrick Gor Sir George Thomas James Hamilton, Wm. Denny, Penn, Benjamin Wharton, Jr., George William Moore, Thomas Mifflin, governor under the constitution and the first governor after it became a state.

CONDEMNIS BENZOATE

In his address of welcome to the Pennsylvania Pharmaceutical Association at The Springs on Tuesday Congressman Reynolds declared the fight against food adulteration by the use of benzoate of soda has only begun, and will be waged until it is settled rightly. Seems rather discourteous to make such remarks almost in the ears of our Representative in the State Senate, Hon. W. C. Miller.

FIRE CRACKERS

A borough ordinance wisely prohibits the use of fire crackers indiscriminately, both with regard to kind and time, and it should be strictly enforced. It is enough that the use of the less harmless kinds is permitted on July 4 (this year July 5), but the danger of fire and of accidents to persons, especially children, that may maim them for life, is too great to allow their use at all times and in all places, and the same reasons are sufficient for the absolute prohibition of the use of pistols, dynamite cartridges, etc. Let the law be obeyed.

THE BOARD OF TRADE

The organization Tuesday evening of a Board of Trade in old Bedford is a step in the right direction. Bedford is an ideal spot for small manufacturing plants, and if the efforts of the Board of Trade shall prove instrumental in bringing even one such plant here the time and energy of the members of the Board will have been well spent.

But it is to be hoped that many such plants may be induced to locate with us. To do this the Board must have the hearty co-operation and loyal support of all the citizens of the town.

That town does not prosper in which business and professional men work for individual and selfish interests to the detriment of the town as a whole. It is the steady, "all-together" pull that counts. Let there be no "hangers-back."

PAYING POLITICAL DEBTS

The nomination last week of Robert Von Moschizker for the highest judicial position in the Commonwealth by the Republican State Convention is another instance of rewarding a man for political work that was, to say the least, very strange.

When a few years ago a machine-dominated Legislature, in defiance of one of the plainest of constitutional prohibitions, passed a law to increase the salaries of judges, it was Judge Von Moschizker who interpreted the following clause of the constitution to mean other than what the plain English says: No law shall extend the term of any public officer or increase or diminish his salary or emolument after his election or appointment.

It was odious at the time, and the people of the state have not yet forgotten it. Either he rendered the decision because of lack of knowledge of the constitution or for purposes beneath the realm of shame.

In either case he is not fit to sit upon the Supreme or any other bench. But such is the selection of Penrose. Even an infamous decision has its reward, and in this case it is the Republican nomination to a position that ought to be filled by a just judge.

THE TRAMP QUESTION

The assault last week of a woman while alone in her home attending to her household duties is another evidence of the danger attending the permitting of "weary willies" to roam at will through our streets and along our highways.

They have been given so much freedom that they have become insolent and are reaching the stage when they dictate just what they want to eat. They are but barnacles, the professional ones, on the body of industry; they consume but do not produce, hence are of no economic value to state or nation; they are common nuisances: these are sufficient reasons for enforcing the law against them, to say nothing of the danger in which women are placed by allowing them to meander aimlessly through the country.

Joseph H. Blackburn

Joseph Harlan Blackburn, one of the oldest and most highly respected citizens of Blair County, died at his home in Williamsburg on Wednesday morning, June 23, at the age of 81 years, two months and seven days. He was born at George Creek, Bedford County, April 16, 1828.

He was twice married, June 10, 1851, to Sarah Jane McConnell of Newry, to whom six children were born, three of whom are living: Harry Albert of Williamsburg, William Wallace and Julius Howard, both of Pittsburg. November 5, 1875, he was married to Mrs. Martha Royer, who survives, as does also one stepson, Harry Royer of Greensburg. He is also survived by one sister, Mrs. Margaret R. Becker of Chicago, Ill.

The funeral services will be held at his late home this afternoon, after which the remains will be taken to Hollidaysburg. Interment in the cemetery at that place.

Mrs. Mary Jane Statler

Mrs. Mary Jane Statler, mother of Mrs. A. J. Otto of this place, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mary L. Livingston, at Cassville, Mo., on Monday, in her 87th year.

Mrs. Statler belonged to one of the oldest families of the county, being a daughter of Charles A. Dannaker of Schellsburg, who operated a stage line on the old pike many years ago. Mrs. Statler was postmistress at Schellsburg in those early days when the mails were carried in stages. She was a consistent member of the Lutheran Church from early womanhood and was held in high esteem wherever known.

In addition to those named she is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Kate W. Cannon of Ralston, Okla.; one sister, Mrs. Thompson Piper of Wantona, Wis.; a half sister and a half brother, Mrs. W. J. Gardner of Rockwood and Charles A. Dannaker of Schellsburg.

C. A. Jones

C. A. Jones, aged two years, five months and nine days, died in Boswell on June 13. The remains were brought to Coal Dale where services were conducted by Rev. F. W. McGuire on Wednesday. Interment was made at Broad Top City.

Are You a "Procrastinator" About Your Clothes—And About Nothing Else?

The "wait-awhile" policy is not good in your business. It's not good in your social affairs. You are not a "procrastinator" in any affair which you consider important.

Why are you in the matter of buying your clothes?

Why defer the matter until all other things have been attended to? Is it because you think the other things more important? Or—WHY is it? Think it over—and then get interested, today, in this suit sale. For, to "wait awhile" is to MISS a real buying chance—the best one in town, by long odds.

KNOW HIS BUSINESS.

The Little Boy Was Thoroughly Posted on the Elevator.

"Little boy," exclaimed the portly lady, "you ought to be at school instead of trying to work a lift."

"I'm not trying to work it," was the answer. "I am working it, and if you wish to ride I shall be happy to accommodate you. So far as any obligation to be at school is concerned, allow me to remind you that this is a legal holiday, and I am exempt from attendance at an institution where, I am pleased to say, I am at the head of my class."

"You have no business trying to work that lift, anyhow."

"For what reason?"

"Because you are too young to know anything about it."

"Madam, allow me to reassure you. This lift is worked by hydraulic pressure, the principle relied on being that water exerts pressure in proportion to the height of a column rather than in proportion to the diameter. In making use of this characteristic water is admitted into a cylinder, the pressure being regulated by the use of valves and a stable equilibrium being made possible by an ingenious system of counterpoises. I could go further into the minutiae of this particular machine, which of course has its variations from other models," he added as she gasped in astonishment, "but I doubt if you could follow the technical terms whose use an accurate description would necessitate, but I wish to assure you that if, after what I have said, you think you know more about this lift than I do you are at perfect liberty to step in and take its management out of my hands."—Londoner's.

STOPPED THE NOISE.

A Chemist's Suggestion to a Maker of Prussian Blue.

The great German chemist, Liebig, related that when he was a young man a manufacturer of prussian blue who was showing him through the works drew his attention to the deafening noise made by certain comminuting and mixing machines. These machines consisted of large iron mortars in which iron pestles were actuated by machinery. The pestles pounded the materials to a fine condition and mixed them. On Liebig's suggesting that some means ought to be devised to prevent the terrible din made by the machines the manufacturer told him that it was a singular fact that the more noise the pestles made the better was the blue produced. It happens that in making prussian blue iron is a necessary constituent of the mixture, a fact that did not seem to be thoroughly appreciated by the manufacturer. He was therefore much surprised when Liebig told him that the iron which was necessary to produce the color was rubbed off his machinery, the most extravagant way to supply it. He understood for the first time, moreover, why it was that the greater the noise from the friction of the pestles in the mortars the better the blue produced. He thus learned in an expensive way that it was better manufacturing to put iron into the mixture than to grind it off high priced machinery.—Frederick J. Maywald in American Industries.

Complimentary.

Intending to visit a small village in Scotland, Archbishop Tait arranged to have his letters addressed to the local postoffice, which happened to be also the hamlet's general store. On the day of his arrival the prelate entered the shop and made inquiry if there was anything for the archbishop of Canterbury.

"Maybe you'll be that purrsen yerself?" the storekeeper suggested, without replying to the archbishop's question.

"Quite right," said Dr. Tait; "I am." "Weel," added the tradesman, "I have a son in a shop in London, and he told me he aince gae'd to St. Paul's cathedral to hear ye preach, and he was vera weel satisfied wi' ye!"—London Home Journal.

An English View.

The slang of New York has its origin, of course, in the climate. It is the climate that has produced the terrible doctrine and practice of "hustle," and for people living in a wild chaos of competition, always in a blinding hurry and in the midst of a deafening din, language has to be pitched up high to cope with the circumstances. There is no time to pause nor any place in which an ordinary quiet phrase would be able to reach your ear. Language to produce any effect at all must be as quick and as violent as all else. A phrase that has not the properties of dynamite goes unheeded.—Max Beerbohm in London Saturday Gazette.

A Diplomatist at Home.

"Mrs. Rawson has a dozen dresses handsomer than the only good one I've got," a young wife complained to her husband, who, a domestic diplomatist, merely remarked: "Of course. A homely woman like that needs plenty of rich gowns to draw attention from her face. Dress cannot heighten your charms, my dear!"—London Mail.

Helpful Child.

Caller—My, what a big girl you are getting to be! You'll soon be able to help your mother about the house. Ethel—Oh, I do that already. Whenever she says "For goodness' sake, get out of my way!" I do it.—Philadelphia Press.

A Deduction.

Maude—How old is Grace? May—At least twenty-five. Maude—How do you know? May—I heard her say that no girl ought to marry before she was twenty-six.—Cleveland Leader.

TIME IS MONEY

Time and Tide wait for no man and the accurate marking of its flight oftentimes means much money, either lost or gained, by the man who has a watch he can always depend upon. The watches we carry are the makes of men who have been in the business of making watches all their life and their fathers were in the same business before them. In a word, these watches represent the acme of perfection and are built to keep accurate time all the time. They cost a little more than a Waterbury or Ingersoll, but in actual value they are cheaper. In all kinds of cases from $5 up.

Lesson XIII.—Second Quarter,
For June 27, 1909.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Rom. xiii, 8-14.
Memory Verses 8, 10—Golden Text,
Rom. xiii, 14—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

We have today an excellent lesson from the writings of the Holy Spirit through Paul in perfect keeping with our recent lessons from James showing the necessity of a godly life to prove to the world the reality of our faith. The first two verses call our attention to the law which is holy and just and good, but which, according to Rom. vii, 13, was given that every mouth might be stopped and all the world be proved guilty before God, for no one has ever lived since Adam fell but has broken the law except the Lord Jesus Christ, who is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth (Rom. x, 4). He perfectly loved God and man and by His sacrifice for sin on our behalf has provided absolutely perfect righteousness, justifying freely by His grace all who come unto God by Him. This is fully set forth in the first eight chapters of this epistle. Then follows in three chapters the story of Israel, then the life not conformed to this world which the Lord expects to be found, by His grace, in all believers—a life of love, according to I John iv, 11, "Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another." The life of love that He will live in us if we will let Him is fully told in I Cor. xiii, 4-7. He redeems us from the curse of the law and assures us of no condemnation to any who are in Christ, in order that the righteousness of the law may be fulfilled in us who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit (Rom. viii, 2-4).

If the man or woman given to wine or strong drink knew of the love that is better than wine, the love that can neither be quenched nor bought (Song i, 2, 4; vii, 7), the appetite for earth's stimulant would be overcome.

Having become children of light and of the day, not man's day, but the Lord's day, we are expected to walk as children of light, to walk in love, and to awake from all sleep or indifference to the things of God (I Thess. v, 5-8; Eph. v, 2, 8, 15). Remember Jonah and his disobedience, Samson and his weakness, and also the sleep of the favored three on the Mount of Transfiguration and in the garden, and, hearing the voice of Him who is ever calling us to a closer walk with Him, "Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light" (Eph. v, 14), let us aim to be separate from all dead things and dead people and alive only unto God.

The salvation of the individual believer is threefold—we are saved, we are working out that salvation in our daily life, and we are waiting for and daily drawing nearer to the redemption of the body. It is that third phase to which we are all the time nearer, and until we receive those glorified bodies, just like His own (Phil. iii, 20, 21), we cannot be said to have obtained the fullness of the life that is ours in Christ. Then shall the life really begin for which we are now being fitted by our training here. His precious blood fits us perfectly for His presence, but there is a fitness for His service in the ages to come when He will show the exceeding riches of His grace in His kindness toward us through Christ Jesus (Eph. ii, 7), and for this every bit of discipline in the daily life is needed. If we believed this we would not shrink from anything He sends or permits to come to us this little while, but would by His grace say, "This is His best for me today. This age, called in I Cor. iv, 3, margin, "man's day," with all its boasted progress, is in the sight of God, and as compared with the next age, only as night, when the light comes through moon and stars, but the coming day will begin when the Sun of Righteousness shall arise with healing in His wings. Then shall all things that offend be gathered out and the righteous shall shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father (Mal. iv; Matt. xiii, 43-45).

With the kingdom and glory to which He has called us ever before us (I Thess. ii, 12) we are able to rejoice even when partakers of His sufferings, knowing that when His glory shall be revealed we shall be glad with exceeding joy (I Pet. iv, 13). We have no longer any desire to live the rest of our time in the flesh to the lusts of men, but to the will of God, for the time past of our lives has more than sufficed to have wrought the will of the gentiles (I Pet. iv, 2-3). We have been crucified with Christ, we are risen with Christ, we seek things above, not on the earth, for we have died, and our life is hid with Christ in God, and we continually anticipate the coming again with Him in glory (Col. iii, 1-4). Knowing that we are now the children of God and having our hope set on Him, we are by His grace enabled to put on the Lord Jesus Christ, let Him also live in us, on the throne of our hearts, and thus make no provision for the sinful self life but rather reckon it dead and walk in newness of life to the glory of God. Having become the Lord's own property, our motto is henceforth "unto the Lord," and the judgment seat of Christ is ever before us, remembering that every one of us shall give account of himself to God (xiv, 7-12).

Parasols Are Now Made of Raffia
Apricot a Favorite Spring Color.

The newest parasol is made of raffia in natural color, with raffia fringe. The handle is long, in the directoire style.

Hats of coral chip as well as the once more popular crinoline are seen with wide spreading brims curled up on one side.

Apricot is a color that is being worn extensively this spring not only in materials, but in accessories. There are lovely silk stockings in this shade beautifully embroidered with a design in bowknots in a darker tone.

It is daring enough for some women who are not at all good to look at to attempt bangs, but the climax is reached when a bunch of loose curls protrude from the back of the hat. These are tacked loosely to the hair at the back of the head in an effort to be natural, but the effect is that of a bunch of curls in the wrong place.

For street or dress wear the new shoes of cloth in dark tones to match the gown worn with them are very smart.

The costume seen in the illustration is most attractive in that it provides for a dress that can be worn separately or in combination with the coat to form a suit. The dress is semiempire, and the waist is joined to the seven gored skirt. The coat is simple and easy to make. JUDIC CHOLLET.

A pattern of this costume may be had in six sizes—from 32 to 42 inches bust measure. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number (4613), and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail.

The Costume Idea For Summer Gowns.
Beware of Eccentric Hats.

If a woman wants to be in the swim next summer she will make every effort to have her clothes carry out the costume idea—that is, having decided upon a period for her frock, she must have hat, shoes and all accessories to correspond.

For the girl who can put on any old hat and look bewitching the new hats have no terror, but for her sister who has to go easy—well, the least said is the better about her prospects.

Among the attractive pongee weaves coming directly from the orient are the robe patterns in the natural color, which, despite the dressmaker's decree, is always rich and elegant.

Black and white shepherd plaid suits are on hand again this season, and they are more attractive than ever. Even these suits have not escaped the jet fad, for some of the smartest models are in medium sized checks, with plippings of black satin and decorated with large flat buttons.

The stunning little bolero is a dainty wrap for spring and summer. It can be made either from the dress material or from material in a matching color. As seen in the illustration, the bolero is of dark blue broadcloth heavily braided in black soutache and is to be worn over a blue foulard silk having a white polka dot design.

THE WALL THAT WAS NOT.

A Story of a Girl's Treachery to Her Sister.

By HELEN RAMSDALL.
[Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

In the rosy light of the setting sun Miss Rachel, the elder of the two Belden sisters, was gathering her sunflower seed. Miss Emily, the younger, sat on the porch watching her sister's movements, her sewing lying idle on her lap. Presently she ventured to remonstrate.

"I'm quite sure, Rachel, that the seeds are not nearly ripe enough to gather and that you are only spoiling your next year's crop."

"Very well. In that case I'll buy some new ones," answered Miss Rachel, "or perhaps we can afford to build a six foot fence on our side of this one and grow it over with vines. Anyway, not one of these seeds is going to fall on their side."

Miss Emily rose and walked over to the fence, speaking very softly.

"I don't want them to hear us, Rachel. It's like trying to quarrel with them, and they've always tried to be friendly. I really can't see why you hate them so. You used to like Steve once, and his wife is a pleasant, sweet spoken woman."

"Sweet spoken—yes! I should say that's how she got him."

Miss Emily sighed wistfully.

"I don't see why you hate them so," she repeated.

"You don't? Humph! Well, you just once try being nice and polite to them, and you needn't be my sister any longer!"

At that moment a girl some twelve years of age came out of the house-hold thus condemned by Miss Rachel, and both the sisters grew silent. They had been speaking much too low for their neighbors to hear what they said, and in innocent ignorance the girl called over, though timidly, as if half expecting one of the snubs she so completely failed to understand.

"Aren't you gathering your seeds awful early, Miss Belden? It's better to let them get ripe. They're the finest sunflowers we've ever seen. We're sorry they've quit blooming."

To the girl Miss Rachel was silence itself. To her sister she replied in tones of unuttered indignation too low for the girl to hear.

"It'll be a six foot fence next year if I have to live on dry bread."

"Oh, Rachel, how it would look!"

"We can cover our side with vines."

"But in winter the vines would be dead, just the same as the flowers."

Without reply Miss Rachel gathered up her apronful of great staring seed cups and ascended the stairs to her room. Here she went straight to an old fashioned writing desk and, opening it, placed the package of seeds in one of its many compartments.

Once it was out of her sight the hard lines in her comely face relaxed, and gradually as they faded her natural expression returned, revealing tears of suffering and of genuine kindness as well.

For a long time she sat there absorbed in her reverie, and as the sunlight died without new light touched Miss Rachel's face from within, and led by some touch of previous memory, she opened a small locked drawer and took out a quaint old box of faintly fragrant sandalwood.

It had grown too dark to see its contents plainly, but Miss Rachel did not need to see them. She knew every line of the faded letters that lay there, every detail of the girlish forget-me-not ring in its tiny box beside them, every word of the newspaper notice of death that lay beneath them, while every feature of the photograph that lay on top was graven deeper in her heart.

Tonight she went over it all once again—her joy, her passionate, silent grief then her awakening from her own bitter sorrow to find that her sister was suffering also. Then she had opened her eyes, so long blinded to all save her own bitter grief, and looked for the cause of her sister's to find that Emily's lover, Stephen Loring came to see her sister no more.

Questioned, Miss Emily had replied proudly, with swift flushing cheeks, that she did not wish him to come, and Miss Rachel probed no further. Scarcely a year later Stephen married a girl of a neighboring village, and Emily, growing paler and gentler day by day, gave all the love left in her heart to Rachel, which Miss Rachel silently but deeply reciprocated, all the more tenderly that Miss Emily so often seemed inwardly shrinking before her, as if in shame at her fate.

"Rachel!"

Miss Emily stood at the door peering into the now dark room.

"Old Miss Clayton is dying, and they want you right away."

Miss Rachel rose at once, not even closing the lid on her little box of keepsakes.

At the door she paused, speaking gently:

"You won't need to go until morning. You are too frail for such things."

And before Miss Emily could reply

he was gone on this, one of her many deeds of mercy.

Alone, Miss Emily entered the room and went to the window, where she could watch her sister's tall form through the fast deepening darkness.

A lamplighter came by as she stood there and lighted the lamp in the street below, just in front of the window. As she moved from the window the audacious gleam of light penetrated past her, falling directly on the opened box of keepsakes.

Dreamily, yet half startled, Miss Emily moved toward them. She knew well enough what they were—the package of letters tied with a narrow black ribbon were Andrew Arnold's letters of love to Rachel; the little box beside them held a well known turquoise ring, but the picture that lay on top, surely she might see that again after all these many years.

Half guiltily she lifted it and held it in the light, eagerly scanning the face. Then, with a little sob, she sank on her knees, the picture still clasped in her hand, her hidden face resting on her arms.

Silently thus the minutes passed, yet Miss Emily took no heed. And so Miss Rachel, coming home to a darkened, unlocked house, found her a little later.

For a moment she stood in the doorway, lost in wonder at her sister's still form in the lamplight; then she advanced swiftly to her side.

"Emily," she said—"Emily, dear, are you ill?"

Miss Emily sprang to her feet as if suddenly waked from a dream. One hand still held the photograph, but after an instant she dropped it on the desk, and, clasping her hands, she cried in a low, passionate voice—a new voice to Miss Rachel:

"Oh, Rachel, Rachel, forgive me. He did not know; he never, never dreamed it. You, you only, had his life and all of it, and, oh, I could not help it! Surely I have suffered enough, and I never, never meant to wrong you."

Miss Rachel stood so still she might have been carved of stone, too terribly bewildered for the simplest form of thought. But her sister went on with her passionate pleading.

"Can't you forgive me, Rachel, when he never, never knew and you had all his love?"

Miss Rachel's voice trembled.

"But Steve—Stephen Loring?"

"He caught my girlish fancy, Rachel. But when I found out how I felt—about—your Andrew—I sent Steve away. And the next week Andrew died so suddenly—his heart all yours to the last. Oh, Rachel, sister, you cannot forgive me, I know! I will go away—alone!"

"Hush, child," said Miss Rachel sternly. "I have nothing to forgive. You are the greater sufferer, as you have always been. But go away for awhile. I want to be alone."

Next morning the sun had scarcely dried the radiant dew when Miss Rachel opened an unused gate and went over to her neighbor's. In her hand she held the tiny package of seed she had placed last night on her desk.

Next year two rows of sunflowers nodded across the fence—the same low picket fence—not by any means six feet high.

MODERN TROGLODYTES.

The Matmats, the Cave Dwellers of Tunisia, Africa.

One of the strangest of capital cities is that of the troglodytes, or Matmats, the cave dwellers of Tunisia, Africa. It contains about 3,000 inhabitants, and the principle of its architecture is to dig into the earth rather than to build upon it. These troglodytes are to be found between the town of Gabes, on the Tunisian coast, and the sand hills of the Sahara. The country is a high, rocky plateau, barren, sun baked and swept by the si-moom. When a Matmata wants a new dwelling he chooses his spot, traces a circle and then digs until he has reached the desired depth, which varies according to the number of stories he requires.

The rooms consist of caves hollowed out in the sides of the circular pit, the bottom of which forms a patio, or courtyard, which is the usual feature of a Moorish house. Besides the rooms, a passage is also dug, communicating with the outside world, and a door is made at the outer end.

The soil, which is a kind of malleable clay, is easily cut and lends itself well to excavation, the roof of each room requiring no support as long as it is arched. These underground dwellings are not damp.—Chicago News.

POSITION FOR SLEEP.

A Variety of Opinions Among Eminent French Medical Men.

A number of eminent French medical men have given their opinion to the Matin of Paris on what they consider the healthiest position for sleep.

Dr. Delorme, army medical inspector, declares that the natural position is to lie flat on one's back. Professor De-bone and Dr. Daveniere of the School of Hygiene are of the same opinion and point out that lying on either side causes pressure of the arm, which may eventually bring about paralysis.

Dr. Landouzy of the medical faculty says that the best position is the most comfortable position, and this is acquired by habit. It would be well, however, to accustom oneself to sleep on the right side. Dr. Letulle of the Medical academy maintains emphatically that the sleeper should always lie on the right side and thus avoid indigestion and heart troubles.

In startling contradiction comes a statement from a heart specialist, Dr. Huchard: "I always sleep on my left side, and I think it is quite immaterial whether you lie on your left or right side. The idea, however, that those who cannot lie on the left side suffer from heart affection is quite erroneous."

What Brown Did.

Mrs. and Mr. Brown—that isn't the usual way of putting it, but it was the way they ranked—had been invited to a party where Mrs. Brown understood, there was to be a host of literary lions. Mrs. Brown is an extremely handsome woman and just enough of a coquette to attract men about her wherever she goes.

Not long after they had arrived Mrs. Brown had four men around her, while Brown was pretending to be interested in some books scattered around on a corner table. Mrs. Brown inquired of the men in turn as to just what sort of literature they produced. One confessed he was a coffee broker, another was a doctor, the third was a machinery salesman. The fourth man admitted cheerfully that his only service to literature was reading books and newspapers. At this point Brown joined the group, and the coffee broker suggested to the lady that she might ask the newcomer what he did.

"Oh," remarked Mrs. Brown, placing B. at once in the discard, "he's my husband."—Exchange.

Extinct.

"Bessie," said the teacher of the class which taught all about birds—in the school prospectus it was called the "ornithological division"—"give me the name of one bird which is now extinct."

Bessie wrinkled her brows.

"What's extinct, please?" she asked.

"No longer existent," explained the teacher. "Can you name one?"

"Yes," piped Bessie readily. "Dick."

"Dick—Dick?" repeated the teacher. "And what kind of bird is a 'Dick' please?"

"Our canary," answered Bessie. "The cat extinted him."

Marquis.

The designation marquis is the second in the five orders of English nobility. The term originally indicated persons who had the care of the marches of a country. The word marches is the plural of mark, which in its political sense signifies boundaries. Such were the lands on the borders of England and Scotland and of England and Wales.

Early Football Players.

Football was for many years the national game of Florence. The season was from January to March, and the ladies and gentlemen of Florence and the populace as well were wont to assemble on the Piazza Santa Gioce to witness the game, which was called "calcio," from the word meaning "to kick." The last game was played in 1739.

A Square Deal

Is assured you when you buy Dr. Pierce's family medicines for all the ingredients entering into them are printed on the bottle-wrappers and their formulas are attested under oath as being complete and correct. You know just what you are paying for and that the ingredients are gathered from Nature's laboratory, being selected from the most valuable native medicinal roots found growing in our American forests and while potent to cure are perfectly harmless even to the most delicate woman or child. Not a drop of alcohol enters into their composition. A much better agent is used both for extracting and preserving the medicinal principles from them, viz.—pure vegetable glycerine. This agent possesses intrinsic medicinal properties of its own, being a most valuable antiseptic and antiferment, nutritive and soothing demulcent.

Glycerine plays an important part in the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia and weak stomach, attended by sour risings, heart-burn, foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, gnawing feeling in stomach, biliousness and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

Besides curing all the above distressing ailments, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific for all diseases of the mucous membranes, as catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or pelvic organs. Even in its ulcerative stages it will yield to this sovereign remedy if its use be persevered in. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal passages, it is well, while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures the worst cases.

In coughs and hoarseness caused by bronchial, throat and lung affections, except consumption in its advanced stages, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most efficient remedy, especially in those obstinate, hanging coughs caused by irritation and congestion of the bronchial mucous membranes. The "Discovery" is not so good for acute coughs arising from sudden colds, nor must it be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages—no medicine will do that—but for all the obstinate chronic coughs, if neglected, or badly treated, lead up to consumption, it is the best medicine that can be taken.

A Heroic Dog.

Near the Hospice of St. Bernard, Switzerland, is a monument to Barry, one of the dogs, which always interests tourists. This animal died some years ago, and a writer in the Wide World Magazine tells his story: "During the ten years he was at the hospice he saved the lives of forty persons who had lost their way in the snow. On one occasion he found a child ten years old lying in the snow under the influence of the fatal slumber which precedes death. The dog warmed the child with its breath and then roused it from sleep by licking it. This much accomplished, Barry by lying down on its side gave the child an obvious invitation to get upon its back and ride. The child did so and was carried to the monastery. Barry was killed by some unknown person, probably in mistake. The inscription on the monument is: 'Barry, the Heroic, Saved the Lives of Forty Persons and Was Killed by the Forty-first.'"

Clean Pens For Swine.

No animal on the farm will try harder to keep clean than a hog will. Give him a chance to do so, and it will mean dollars in your pocket, says a breeder.

Our pens are bedded with eight to twelve bushels of sawdust spread over the floor, with a forkful of straw placed in one corner for a bed. Some extra straw is added every second or third day as needed. Pens are cleaned out once a week. This keeps the hogs dry and clean, with a good bed to lie in all the time.

DON'T BE MISLED

Many a life has been cut short by a cough that was not believed to be serious. Many a backache and side-ache follows a coughing spell. Many a night is passed in restlessness caused by coughing. Many a cough "cure" that never cures is tried. Do not be misled. If you cough, take the old reliable Kemp's Balsam, the best cough cure. At druggists and dealers, 25c.

THE HARDY LITTLE DEVONS.

An Ohio cattleman who complains that the merits of the Devons are not brought to the front as they should be says of this breed:

"Just why more is not said about them I cannot conceive. The Devon is no doubt one of the oldest breeds in the United States. It may be that the Devon breeder is too modest to write up the merits of the breed. He has an animal that suits him at the stall and the block or as a farmer's cow suitable for whatever place she may be called to fill.

"We are aware that there are very few Devons in the middle west or the corn belt, and why there should not be more is a wonder to me, as they are suited to that section as a No. 1 beef animal. The steers mature at as early an age as those of any other breed, and when put beside any of the larger beef animals they are not wanting in quality or in rapidity of growth. While we admit they do not grow as large as the noble Shorthorn, Hereford or Poland Angus, still they are large enough to suit the average farmer, and we assert that no breed will make more beef per acre of grass consumed or bushel of feed fed than do the Devons. One of their strong points is that they are easy to fatten on a small quantity of feed, and no breed gives a finer quality of beef or a greater per cent of meat per carcass. The meat is well marbled and less offal than most beef breeds.

Devon cattle are not merely a breed produced by careful selection and breeding for a number of years, but a race of cattle which with most of its distinctive features has been known in Great Britain since the conquest of the country by Julius Caesar nearly 2,000 years ago. This race has for the past 200 years been carefully bred and all care taken to improve it which has marked the improvement of other breeds of cattle. The type produced by this course of careful breeding has become fixed and has rendered the Devon wonderfully prepotent in stamping his distinctive features upon his progeny and making him of great value to cross upon any breed of cattle. They are very hardy and stand not only changes of climate, but will live and prosper on short feed and scanty pastures, yet with good care will show as good if not better results than any other breed.

"Professor William Brown of the Agricultural Experiment station at Guelph, Canada, says of the Devon:

"The remarkable feature of the Devon with us has been its uniform conduct, no coming and going in anything, but an even run of breeding health and good doing under all conditions. Summer and winter the Devon is equally at home, plump on pasture and in good heart in the stall without grain. They have been particularly good mothers, nursing their calves in a manner superior to anything in our experience. The Devon calf is always full of milk on its milk alone, rolling in fat and with all of the bulk of an old animal. The particular character of the breed and the rich milk give these results. The Devon cow is a milkier rich in quality, moderate in quantity, while the bull gives a frame to the steer that compares well with others for beef carrying.

"The above statement of an unprejudiced and careful observer is certainly complimentary to the beautiful red cattle and can be corroborated by all breeders of Devons. They are often spoken of as the 'Little Devon.' The forcing process may cause some of the more bulky breeds to outstrip them in weight. The bull Barrister weighed 630 pounds at eight months old, Felix IL weighed 1,530 at two years old, Duke of Namden 2,030 at three years old. Cows also show good weights.

Women as Well as Men are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a

Quality

"Seeing" isn't always "believing"—especially when you're buying Shoes.

Sometimes there are hidden faults—carefully concealed. That's because somebody wants to make a few cent's worth of extra profit.

If such footwear ever managed to get into this store, out it would go in a jiffy—but NOT to a customer's home. BACK TO THE MAKER!

Store Policy

We try to sell only trustable shoes. But that bit of carefulness on our part isn't responsible for all the frienes we've made. We do more than wrap up a pair of shoes and take your money. WE FIT YOUR FEET!—don't let one customer carry away one pair of shoes that are likely to prove painful. "Why do we talk so much on this foot-fit subject?" Because it's the most important part of an honest shoe store's business.
